This month, we are highlighting two students who are co-enrolled students from Spartanburg Adult Education with ACHIEVE. Dyanmond Gyst and Quinasia Simpson-Jones joined ACHIEVE through our outreach efforts at Spartanburg Adult Education. Both students were interested in the many things that ACHIEVE could offer them as they are earning their GED. Each of the ladies are taking advantage of driver's training, skills training and wanted to participate in a work-based learning experience. Both were placed with the Spartanburg Human Society. Through this experience, the students are getting to work not only with the animals but are learning how to work with staff and customers as they come in for adoptions. This work-based learning experience is giving students direct insight into the business of community services.
